to west. Much alarm was caused in Valparaiso and Santiago. All the public clocks stopped and the walls of some of the churches and houses were split. The shock was followed by an increase of the thermometer of two and two-tenths degrees. Vessels at anchor for it severely. During the week slight tremors were felt.

N. Underwood, Supervisor of Registration, and Cohen, Clerk of the Court of St. James were arrested by Deputy United States Marshal Flood, at New Orleans yesterday, charged with being engaged in altering the election returns. In the room where the parties were arrested on Rampart street a quantity of tally sheets, statements of voters, several thousand Republican tickets and the seal of the court of St. James parish were found. Commissioner Craig bound the parties over in $1,000 to appear.

The strike of the longshoremen of New York began yesterday. The men were gathered in groups along the docks of the East and North rivers, but did not, during the day, interfere with the loaders, who have taken their places. The entire police force of New York is on duty, and also of Brooklyn and Jersey City, where the longshoremen are likewise on a strike. Last night the strikers became riotous, and attacked an agent of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company with stones, injuring him quite severely.

The Rev. Samuel R. Wilson, D. D., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Louisville, published a card in the daily papers a few days since, making bitter strictures upon the action of the Louisville presbytery, in investigating certain troubles in his church, and denouncing Dr. Stuart Robinson and other individual members of the presbytery, and also Messrs. Watterson and Haldeman, the editor and business manager of the Courier-Journal, for alleged injustice done by that paper to him. At a meeting of the presbytery yesterday a resolution was passed demanding that Dr. Wilson make a humble apology to that body for the strictures in his card, and giving him until this morning to present such an apology, with the alternative of denying him right to participate further in the proceedings of the presbytery.

Dispatches from Arkansas are flatly contradictory, one claiming that Smith has a large force at his command and is certain to succeed, and another claiming there is but a handful of persons who are dissatisfied with the colored people, and in many instances inflicting punishment. Many editors of Republican papers have been arrested without warrants and put in prison, charged with treason, and bail refused. The Republicans are still organizing for self defence, and can protect themselves in the large towns and thickly settled neighborhoods. The people do not sustain Garland. They unanimously sustain Governor Smith. We hope for relief from Washington. If we can not get that we must fight it out.

SUSSEX COX really wants to be Speaker. AND still no one has tried to kidnap the negro and put him into slavery.

CHARLEY ROSS has been found twice this week, once in Canada and once in West Virginia.

SPECULATIONS as to what did it are still rife. The majority of the country press has just tackled the question, and wisdom is being spilled prodigally.

It is singular how anxious a man is to retire to private life when he has been defeated for office. But when he is successful private life has no charms.

THE reports of the heads of the departments and estimates for the coming year, will not, from present signs, indicate a consuming desire for economy.

THE cost of the military establishment is estimated at three millions more for next year than the sum last appropriated, notwithstanding the reduction of the army.

THERE are several public men who ought to be "relegated to the quietude of their own residences," as they say in Detroit. Matt Carpenter, for instance, would adorn private life.

THE returns having been received from the everglades of Florida, the Legislature turns out to be Democratic, which may send up another opposition Senator. We say may. Money is an important constituent of Florida legislative elections, and a fellow can't tell what will happen until it is over.

THE election for rector of Glasgow University took place yesterday, resulting in the choice of Disraeli for a third term. Mr. Emerson received five hundred votes, two hundred less than were cast for his opponent. His being a foreigner was the principal argument against him, and the professors seem to have worked hard for Disraeli.

IF Smith's claim that the Arkansas government is illegal because the constitution was not submitted to the people in the precise form required by the former instrument, is sustained, the constitutions of several other States can be invalidated. The President in that case can give Republican governments to a few northern States, Pennsylvania for instance.

THE New York Bulletin predicts, as the next thing in order, a general reduction of wages. It says:—

When a "union" covering a whole branch of trade reduces its rates of wages, it correspondingly reduces the prices of the goods produced by that trade; so that the trades unions, by ensuring unity of action among their members have the power, to a very large extent, to secure the compensation of reduced costs of living, which naturally follows a decline in wages.

THE Council has voted to reconsider the Hanna street opening and the matter can be brought up for action at any time. It ought to have been voted down permanently. There is no special need for opening that street and it certainly is not worth three thousand dollars, to say nothing of thirty or more. The day is not far distant when we shall see some big jobs in these street openings and it is a good idea to establish a few precedents.

THE political caldron at Washington is seething again, to use a recently invented metaphor. The politicians are gathering to lay pipe and form combinations for the next Congress and for the Presidential canvas. It seems absurd to begin so long in advance, but great movements usually spring from far distant causes, and work now may be very productive two years hence. Your regular politician has an abiding faith in fixing things long ahead.

HAYES, the Alabama Congressman who tried to fire the Northern heat, having failed wretchedly, tried to get up a little outrage on his own behalf, by attacking Mr. White the correspondent of the New York Tribune. Mr. White had investigated his statements about the terrorism existing in the South, and found they were lies. He wrote so to his journal. In reply Mr. Hayes assaulted him as he was stepping off a train at Washington, but did not do much injury. Having lied and having had it proved upon him, that was the only answer Hayes could well make.

A DISPATCH from Washington yesterday says the Treasury Department has no recent advices in reference to the one hundred and seventeen millions remaining of the five per cent. loan, which the Syndicate have up to the 31st of January the option to take. Fifty-five millions have so far been taken by them absolutely. The bonds are firm in the London market. So far from the government bonds being returned, as was predicted by Republicans in the event of the Democrats carrying the elections, these securities have advanced since the election, and the demand for them both at home and abroad is greater than ever.

If the Democratic party wished to commend itself to public confidence, it could do nothing more effective, than to re-elect Senator Schurz in Missouri, and try to elect Charles Francis Adams Senator from Massachusetts. These are men of the first rank, fitted in every respect for the office, and representing the patriotism, the conservatism and the intelligence of the country. With the exception of Thomas H. Benton, Missouri has never had a Senator of such national reputation and influence as Schurz, nor one who accomplished more for her. The Democrats, by re-electing him, would be giving a pledge of their good purposes in government, that would be worth thousands of votes. We fear, though, that they will not do it. Some hack politician like Boggs, or some broken-down freedom-shrieker like Gratz Brown, who was a perfect non-entity in the Senate, will be apt to succeed him.

MR. HOWLAND'S suggestion that the Governor's Circle be appropriated to the new city library building presents the objections to the recommendation of a different site by the School Board very forcibly, but not more forcibly than it presents the arguments for the Circle site. As an empty and inaccessible park it is merely a resting place for the eye, pretty but idle. As the site of a handsome public library it would lose none of its beauties as a park and gain some by the display of an architectural ornament of the city. It is without question the best situation in the city or the State, or in any State we know of, for a becoming public structure, whether monumental or useful. The ground is high, central, visible from all the cardinal points of the compass, dry, beautifully sodded and shaded, and forms the natural as well as the artificial core of the city. No one can pretend that a structure such as Mr. Hodgson or Mr. Bohlen might design, would not make it ten fold more beautiful than it is, without losing a dozen trees or twenty square yards of turf. The only objection we can conceive is the possibility that the Legislature will not let the city have it under Section 9 of Article 15 of the Constitution which forbids the "State House square, the Governor's Circle and so much of out lot 147 as lies north of the arm of the Central Canal" from being "sold or leased." The argument derived from the cession or permission to park University square does not apply to the Circle. That square is not put under the constitutional inhibition because it does not belong to the State except as a trustee any more than it does to the city. But the Circle "does, and it shall not be sold or leased." If the cession for a permanent building does not come within the constitution's taboo, well and good, better and best, for it is the very thing we want. But don't it? That's the question. That's where the pinch comes. We very much fear it does. To be neither "sold nor leased" is to keep it wholly in the State's hands, and that it can't be if the city has such a right in it as she should have before putting a hundred thousand dollar building upon it. Without some sort of indefeasible right which will prevent a capricious legislature from going the city deeply some time, by reclaiming the property after our building is on it, we should put no building on it. And we doubt if such an indefeasible right can be got under the constitution. That is the ugly side of the case for Mr. Howland's otherwise apt and admirable suggestion.

THE Use of an Ex-Mayor. (New York Cor. Baltimore American.) It is pretty well understood that the Hon. Fernando Wood is laying his wires for the difficult and dangerous honors of the Speakership, and it is considered that he will be a formidable, and, very likely, a successful candidate. He is experienced, very rich (an admirable qualification), and has a handsome wife; lastly, he is one of the few men who have survived the Mayoralty. An ex-Mayor, like an ex-President, is usually employed for nothing but funeral processions.

"Pleasing to the Public." (New York Tribune.) The spectacle of the venerable President of the New York Central railroad, accompanied by the Presidents of the great Pennsylvania network and the "never is but always to be" lucrative Erie, posting off to Baltimore to induce the President of the Baltimore and Ohio to enter into a combination with them, and returning with nothing but loads of good advice, is pleasing to the public.

Memory. EMILY BRONTE. I dare not let it languish, Dare not indulge in memory's rapturous pain; Once drinking deep of that divinest anguish, How could I taste thy happy world again?

If I Had Known. If I had known in the morning How wearily all the day The world would be to me, I should have found my mind I said when you went away, I had been more careful, darling, But we've "our own" With look and tone We might never take back again.

For though in the quiet evening You may give me the kiss of peace, Yet it might be That never for me The pain of the heart should cease. How many go forth in the morning That never come home at night! And hearts have broken For harsh words spoken That sorrow can ne'er set right.

We have careful thoughts for the stranger, And smiles for the sometime guest, But out for "our own" The bitter tone Though we love "our own" the best! Ah! how with that look of scorn, 'Twere a cruel fate Were the night too late To undo the work of the morn!

In an Illinois town, not long ago, one of the attractions of an evening entertainment was to be a table of the Prodigal Son, after Dubufe's painting. Goss, (the man he was convicted of murdering, but who, he contended, was burned in the tenement in Baltimore,) a friend ever dear to me, that our bodies may mingle together on the sunny banks of the deliverance, where pleasures never end."

INDIANA MANUFACTURES. A Glance at Their Present Condition. (By James U. Swank, Sec. American Iron & Steel Association.)

It will be interesting and instructive to note some of the features of the manufacturing development of those Western States which have encouraged manufacturing enterprise. In traveling West, Indiana, the first State we enter after leaving the great Middle States. At Indianapolis, the capital and chief city, we discover a degree of manufacturing activity which is astonishing. The proximity of the great black coal fields of Indiana, which are estimated to be extensive as the whole coal area of Great Britain, gives this city a supply of cheap and excellent fuel, and the vast railroad system, of which it is the center, affords it an outlet in every direction for whatever goods it may see paper to make. The population of the city is about 100,000, and of this number 10,000 are skilled workmen employed in its various factories and workshops. Iron is a leading article of manufacture. In 1873 there were produced $3,500,000 worth of miscellaneous iron products, employing 500 men and requiring $2,500,000 of capital. The city is also a great lumber market, while cooper's stock, sashes and blinds, agricultural implements, wagons and carriages, sewing machines, furniture, railroad cars, and other timber products are largely produced. There are also many other prosperous industries, the yearly product of starch being $1,000,000; of clothing $700,000; of oils $550,000; of cottons $300,000; of woollens $650,000. The city has an extensive

Meeting of the Grand Encampment in Semi-Annual Session. The Reports of the officers for the Past Six Months.

GRAND PATRIARCH'S REPORT.

J. E. Barrett, Grand Patriarch, reports peace, harmony, and brotherly love prevailing, and reports for the past six months two new encampments, one, the Delphi, No. 127, instituted June 3, at Delphi, Carroll county, and the second, the Kirkin, No. 129, instituted August 20th, at Kirkin, Clinton county.

The receipt of resolutions from Hall of Uniform Patriarchs, St. Louis, Mo., was acknowledged, complimenting the Indianapolis Brothers upon their success in securing in this city the 1875 session of the Grand Lodge of the United States, and tendering for that occasion 200 Patriarchs in uniform, with music, as part of an escort.

GRAND SCRIBE'S REPORT.

Rev. B. F. Foster, Grand Scribe, reports a marked improvement in the Patriarchal Branch, with not a single delinquent encampment. The report for the close of the December term of last year gave a net increase of only 26, but the present will foot up a net gain of 167 membership.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

THE GENESIS OF THE NEW ENGLAND CHURCHES. By Leonard Bacon, D. D. New York: Harper & Brothers. For sale by York & Porter, 478, with index and illustrations, $7.50.

Few men are better fitted for the task of writing the history of the ancestry of the New England Churches than Dr. Bacon, who brings to his work a thorough knowledge of his subject, a clearness in analysis, a fairness and comprehensiveness that will make it not only a valuable contribution to literature, but a standard historical authority.

While it may be classed with ecclesiastical history, it possesses all the charm of romance. It is in no sense controversial, unless his statements of the early differences in the churches may be so considered.

As the author says in the preface it is "a story of an idea slowly making its way against prejudices, interest and passions—a story of faith and martyrdom, of heroic endeavor and heroic constancy." The opening chapters treat of the apostolic churches, giving a history of their development from primitive organization into the Roman church, and the rebound to more simplicity at the time of the Reformation.

The history of the Pilgrims and the Puritans, their conflicts with more conservative types of Protestantism, and the differences between the two, take up a large part of the volume. The clearness with which he distinguishes between the Puritans, who were advocates of the union of church and state, with all the machinery that union necessitates, and the Pilgrims, who took the opposite course, and who founded the New England churches, will tend to enlighten the popular mind which has always considered the two terms as essentially describing the same thing. It contains copious foot notes and references.

SOME LEADING PRINCIPLES OF POLITICAL ECONOMY NEWLY EXPOUNDED. By Cairnes, M. A. Emeritus Professor of Political Economy in University College, London. Pp. 42. New York: Harper & Brothers. For sale by York & Porter.

This is a work of great value, agreeing in the main with the general principles laid down by Mill, Adam Smith and other eminent political economists, but differing from them in some important respects. It is very clear in style, free from assumption and controversy, avoiding technical language and all rhetorical display. In bringing his theoretic doctrines into comparison with the facts of industry and commerce, Prof. Cairnes takes occasion to criticize the power and pretensions of Trades Unions, the efficacy of strikes, and other questions involved in the relations of labor and capital. The position of the external trade of the United States and their system of protection are also considered and criticized. The reputation of Prof. Cairnes sally prosperous. The Grand Lodge, U. S. F. M., has amendments to the constitution. A charter was granted for the Nevada Grand Encampment and Subordinate Encampments under the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge— including three in Arkansas, one in Oregon, one in Nevada, one in Dakota, one in Montana, one in New Brunswick, and one in Manitoba. The entire membership of the Patriarchal Branch, December 31, 1873, was $40,131; a net increase for the year of $1,168. The resolution prohibiting subordinates from admitting to membership persons engaged in the manufacture or sale of spirituous or malt liquors was received adversely, because it would make a new qualification for membership. Past High Priests, members of a Grand Encampment, were allowed to wear the regalia now authorized to be worn by Past Chief Patriarchs. The uniform of the Patriarchal Branch, for public occasions, was changed to the following: But it was left optional to subordinates to wear the uniform to either adopt or let it alone.

1. Black chapeau with three flowers, two black and one royal purple.

2. Black elo fatigue cap, of present navy style, with double velvet band and small gilt cord on each edge.

3. A pointed baldric of royal purple velvet, trimmed with yellow lace and a row of gilt buttons on each edge, with crossed crookes, etc. The baldric to be worn from right shoulder to left hip under the sword belt.

4. Six gloves, with cuffs of royal velvet, gilt braid, etc.

5. Belt of purple velvet with two stripes of gilt lace and short metal link chains with hooks for fatigue cap.

6. Sword 36 inches long with black grip, etc. Scabbard of yellow metal embossed or engraved, with compass ends.

7. Plain black coat and plain black pants, usual style.

The Chief Captain's uniform differs from the above in the belt of yellow velvet with black edges and a gilt equilateral triangle on the left arm, above the elbow. A corresponding distinction from this is made with the uniforms of the other officers.

In conclusion the Grand Representatives reported the death of Past Grand Sire S. H. Perkins, of Philadelphia; and a glory to a little before the 1875 session of the Grand Lodge of the United States will be held in this city.

Claiming a Part.

The following notice appeared in our issue of the 12th inst: "An effort is on foot to have Bobb's dispensary merged into a city dispensary after January 1st and to be entirely under the control of the city." This suggestion, it is suggested to the patrons of Homoeopathy, in case this is done, they also are entitled to receive from this dispensary homoeopathic treatment. If Bobb's dispensary is to be merged into a city institution and is to be kept up in our midst by taxation and under the control of city authorities, justice can not be done to a large portion of the supporters of this dispensary, unless the medicines of their choice are dispensed from it. There are at present twelve homoeopathic physicians in the city, all of whom are doing a fair proportion of the city practice, and it is no idle boast to assert that they have among their patronage more than an average amount of the intelligence and wealth of the city; and of course where charitable institutions are supported by taxation, wealth always bears the heaviest burdens. Now as a patron of this system of treatment I ask this dispensary be made a city dispensary and we who are taxed to support it have justice done us, unless we have our favorite mode of treatment represented in it? HOMOEOPATHY.

A Card.

I notice a correspondence in your paper that purports to be an answer to "Listener," of the 2d inst., in which he said that "since the days of Lankford and other colored preachers of Indianapolis have been bored with preachers unequal to the intellectual demands of their hearers." Your correspondent makes the first read, "During the charge of Lankford the people were bored with preachers unequal to the intellectual demands of their hearers." With those who did not read the first article the conclusion is easy, that Lankford bored the people, which is not true. The colored people never had a more able and acceptable preacher than Lankford. The correspondent made an indirect attack on Dr. Seaton, by hitting a lick over the shoulders of Lankford and others, and charged that Seaton was not sent here for his ability to preach, but because he was a more efficient beggar, which is discredit to his ability, which is very great. SALEM—A Tale of the Seventeenth Century. By D. Castleton. New York: Harper & Brothers. For sale by York & Porter.

This is a novel, founded on Salem witchcraft—a fact which will insure it readers among the lovers of the marvellous. The author has used to advantage the materials at his command, and if its somber aspect is relieved by but few bright incidents, it is the fault of the subject rather than the author.

A singular fascination clings to the records of this strange and wide spread delusion, but it is remarkable how vague and incorrect all knowledge of its painful history is even among well read persons, and Mr. Castleton's endeavor to call to view the scenes and actors of those terrible times, though diluted by fiction, will give him readers if it does not throw a very strong light upon his subject.

RISEN FROM THE RANKS, OR HARRY WATSON'S SUCCESS. By Horatio Alger, Jr. Boston: Lothrop, publisher. For sale by Merrill & Hubbard. $1.50

Notwithstanding some faults of style, this book of Mr. Alger's is one that can be profitably read by boys. While it contains no extraordinary incidents nor improbable adventures, it is a book in which boys will take a lively interest. It is the record of the rise of an aspiring youth placed in ordinary circumstances, who by industry and patient striving reaches at length a high and honorable position in the nation. It is written in easy, colloquial style and has an attractive earnestness and simplicity about it.

KATHERINE EARLE. By Miss Adeline Trafton, author of "An American Girl Abroad," etc. Boston: Lee & Shepard. Pp. 325. For sale by Bowen, Stewart & Co.

A charming and graceful story, quiet in general tone, but displaying much intensity of feeling without any approach toward the dramatic, but exceedingly entertaining. The scenes at school are somewhat incoherent, but the movement of the story is generally smooth and pleasing. It abounds in poetic descriptive passages, and has an air of womanly purity and freshness about it that attracts admiration. It was originally published as a serial in Scribner.

CHASTE ARICE, PURE AS SNOW. A novel. By Mrs. M. C. Despard. Philadelphia: Porter & Coates. For sale by Bowen, Stewart & Co.

The story of a beautiful woman whose husband suspects and deserts her. She loses her only child and meets with other severe trials, which, however she bears with great fortitude, and finally becomes reconciled to her husband and lives happily. It is unobscure in moral tone and quite readable. It contains 462 very closely printed pages.

Little Rose Mansfield Eversole, THE MUSICAL PHENOMENON. AN INFANT PIANIST, COMPOSER AND IMPROVISATOR.

ONE NIGHT ONLY—Monday, November 23, WILL APPEAR FOR THE FIRST TIME, "The Little Rose Combination," Consisting of "America's Musical Fairy Queen,"

Who is the greatest musical wonder the world has ever produced. She is only FIVE YEARS OF AGE, but plays upon the piano with that skill and ease that astonish all who have the pleasure of listening to her. As an IMPROVISATOR she has never been equaled, even by the masters of ancient times. She is the COMPOSER of several pieces of fine music, which she will be delighted to execute before those who are fortunate enough to secure tickets for her concert, to be given as above stated. She will improvise correctly upon the piano with the keyboard covered with a cloth, entirely concealing the keys, which feat the entire musical world is challenged to reproduce. She will also imitate, without hesitancy or mistake, upon the piano, any sound made by the human voice, which of itself is worth twice the price of admission.

Little Rose will be supported by the following talented artists: Miss ISABELLA VICTORIA BUSHER, Soprano Soloist, whose compass of voice extends from lower B flat to high C, swelling and trilling on the latter with ease.

HENRI ZONNATI, Baritone Soloist, whose voice has been the admiration of all the audiences before which he has sung both East and West.

Miss HATTIE E. NEVILLE, Recitationist and Dramatic Reader.
